Description of Project

The project aims at extending the use of remote controlling of heating systems in secondary residences in Switzerland. Switzerland has around 700'000 secondary residences, mainly in mountain regions. Behavioural insights have been used to identify the consciousness and the readiness of the target group to change behaviour. As a result a project of simplification was implemented.

Aim/Expected Impact of Project

The potential energy savings have been estimated at around 2'200 GWh/a. (At the end of 2020, there was 40 2000W sites in Switzerland)
